WHY DELAY?

Coming from so conservative a jour nal as the New York Times, the following opinion on the trust bills, in their relation to business, is peculiarly interesting and worth while:

"From one rational point of view it is just as well that the bills should be passed this session. It is true enough that business needs a rest, but what kind of rest will it get by working under the threat of undefined legislation to be enacted at the next ses sion? It is said that business is suffering from uncertainty. How will that condition be improved by prolonging the uncertainty for six months, or-as would be more probable, if an adjournment were taken now-eighteen months? It is said that the passage of the bills may de-

These ere well reasoned conclusions, and they represent, we believe. the sober thought of business men the country over. There are interests, of One Year $1.00 will oppose trust legislation of any ma, Tetter, Itch and similar Skin .50 character, interests which contend for Eruptions. Don't Scratch-Stop the to industry against the forces that hitherto have disturbed it, and that will vouchsafe to individual enterprise and initiative the freedom and security to which they are entitled. It is these men whom Congress is bound to serve, and their interests can best be protected by completing the program of trust legislation as speedily > as conditions will allow. Honest business has nothing to fear from the laws proposed. They are not designed to interfere with any comcontrary, they are intended strengthen those rights, by putting an end to commercial and industrial wrongs. They are not destructive or even radical. They merely give expression and force to certain convictions at which the public mind has arrived after long years of experience and discussion.
